

Redefining productivity: doing work that matters!

In our busy working lives, time is a precious commodity. Our use of time tends to focus upon effort and targets, but research is showing that a shift towards balancing the human and technical aspects of work creates happier, more productive people, and more successful organisations. This event creates the space, time and opportunity to explore this proposition.

In today's technological, data driven world, it's important to take time out from the 'busy-ness' to pause and reflect on what really matters. Join us and explore ways to:

- create a better working environment and sense of purpose that ultimately delivers on your business promises
- identify the issues that get in the way of collaborative and sustainable working within teams, across teams and across organisations;
- produce useful, creative ideas from a wide range of experience and thinking
- create engagement and commitment to follow with bringing ideas to fruition

What will happen at the event?

In this half-day session, we will create a reflective space in which you can....

- Create your own agendas around what matters to you by interacting with new people
- Share experiences, issues and ideas to make your organization more productive
- Challenge and be challenged through expert facilitation and coaching
- Produce your 'First Steps' action plan to enhance reflection and collaboration in your workplace
- Practice the art of mindfulness so that you can focus on building tomorrow's workplaces

Who is this event for?

Anyone who is interested in making work more inclusive, productive and worthwhile.

Where and when will the event take place?

Thursday, 5th July (9.30 to 1.30pm including buffet lunch)

Come and join us in the beautiful Madingley Hall, Cambridge <https://www.madingleyhall.co.uk>

Booking and fees

If you are interested in knowing more or booking places on this event, please contact:

Dr Gill Stevens, gills@level7live.com or Dorothy Foote, dorothyf@level7live.com

Fee includes refreshments and buffet lunch

Cambridge Network Members : GBP 25 - Non-members: GBP 28

Organizers - Level Seven

Level Seven is a local company that focuses on helping organisations get the best from their people. Our consultants pride themselves on their academic credentials and real world business experience bringing a rigorous but practical perspective to leadership and team working challenges.

Our lead consultants are members of the tutor team for the Certificate and Diploma in Coaching, run by ICE, University of Cambridge.